Introduction

Standards, Indicator Elements, and Requirements

The accreditation seal is a mark of distinction in land conservation. It is awarded to land trusts meeting the highest national standards for excellence and conservation permanence.

Through a rigorous review process, the Land Trust Accreditation Commission verifies a land trust's compliance with Land Trust Standards and Practices (Standards) by evaluating a sample of the elements within the Standards, which are called the "indicator elements."

Click here for a copy of the 2017 Standards.

The Requirements Manual (Manual) provides land trusts greater specificity about how the indicator elements are verified through the "requirements" and enables commissioners to make decisions that are fair and consistent and that accommodate the diverse nature of land trusts.

Indicator Elements Organized in Four Groups

The Manual organizes the indicator elements into four groups.

- Governance
- Finance
- Transactions
- Stewardship

This format makes it easier for you to compile the documentation needed for the accreditation application and addresses feedback from past applicants about redundancy. It also streamlines the Commission's review. Within each of the four groups listed above, you will find the following sections: "Indicator Elements," "Requirements," and "Documents." See more in the "How to Use this Manual" section below.

Risk-Based Approach Ties Rigor of Review to Risk

The Commission developed the requirements with a risk-based mindset in response to land trust feedback that the accreditation review should focus more on high-risk areas to make the best use of land trusts' time. The requirements take into account risk to an individual land trust and risk to the land trust community. The Commission considers four types of risk – conservation, financial, operational, and reputational – as well as the frequency and impact of the risk.

How to Use this Manual

1. Read this Introduction in its Entirety

The introduction explains the format of the Manual and the individual sections.

2. Review the Indicator Elements

The indicator elements are found at the beginning of each group: Governance, Finance, Transactions, and Stewardship.

3. Examine the Requirements

A list of requirements is provided for each group of indicator elements; the requirements are separated into subcategories and numbered for easier reference. The requirements specify what the Commission will verify within the accreditation application and application documents provided for each group of indicator elements. You can think of the requirements as the “grading key” for the documents you provide.

Bold Font

The bold font is one key to understanding how the Commission uses a risk lens in evaluating your accreditation application and application documents.

- Requirements in bold font are verified for every land trust during review of the accreditation application. These requirements correspond to areas where individual land trusts or the land trust community face frequent or high conservation, financial, operational, or reputational risk. Each land trust must have documents demonstrating all the bold requirements are met; if not, corrective action will be required.

For example, in the “Governance: Strategic Goals” section, there is a bold requirement: “Strategic goals (or plan) established by board.” Each land trust must show that its board developed strategic goals or a strategic plan. If the board has not, it will need to establish strategic goals or a strategic plan before the land trust can be awarded accreditation or have accreditation renewed.

- Requirements that are not bolded are just as important, but corrective action is situational and depends on risk. Corrective action for non-bold requirements may be required after the application reviewers assess the information in the accreditation application in the context of the land trust’s specific facts and circumstances and determine the level of risk. In the Commission’s experience, most land trusts are acceptable in these areas. However, there are occasions where the risk may be high if the requirements are not met. If a high-risk area is identified, the land trust may be asked for clarification, additional documentation, and/or corrective action.

For example, in the “Governance: Board Structure and Operations” section, there is a non-bold requirement: “Land trust generally operates in accordance with its bylaws.” Most bylaws will be found acceptable. However, if the application reviewers were to flag that the number of board members is not consistent with the bylaws, then they will look at the risk in the context of the rest of the application documents. If the bylaws call for a board of 9-15 members and the land trust has 16 board members and shows a highly-functioning board, then this is likely low risk and would not require any action. If, however, the land trust only had four board members and appeared to be controlled by a single individual, then this would likely be high risk and require corrective action.

Detail of Review

The words used in the requirements are another key to understanding how a risk lens is used and what level of detail the application reviewers will use when evaluating the application documents.

- If a requirement uses the word “exists,” this means the application reviewers will simply verify if the document is present or not. Application reviewers will skim the document to make sure there are no high-risk concerns; on the rare occasion that something is flagged as high-risk, the land trust may be asked for clarification, additional documentation, and/or corrective action.

For example, in the “Stewardship: Conservation Easement Enforcement and Amendment Policies” section, there is a requirement: “Violation policy and/or procedures exist.” Each land trust must show that it has a conservation easement violation policy and/or procedures. Application reviewers will skim these, and most documents will be found acceptable. However, if the policy were to state that the land trust would take no action to resolve a major violation so long as the landowner paid the land trust, then this would be flagged as high risk and require corrective action.

- If a requirement uses words like “sufficient,” “appropriate,” or “generally,” this means the application reviewers will consider the facts and circumstances and evaluate whether or not there are high-risk concerns; some variation in how land trusts meet the requirement is expected.

For example, in the “Stewardship: Conservation Easement Enforcement and Conservation Property Ownership Challenges” section, there is a requirement: “Board informed or involved in resolution as appropriate to scale of violation or ownership challenge.” The application reviewers will evaluate the extent and nature of the violation or ownership challenge and what steps the land trust is taking to resolve the issue. If the land trust were to face a major violation or ownership challenge (such as a third party constructing a house that will involve legal action and significant expense to resolve), then the application reviewers will look at the high-risk nature of this issue and will likely expect to see the board involved in some way. However, if the land trust were to have a more moderate violation or ownership challenge (such as a temporary structure that was removed upon request), then the application reviewers will look at the lower-risk nature of this issue and would likely find it acceptable that the board was only informed of the issue.

In this way, what is appropriate is viewed in the context of the specific facts and circumstances.

There may be areas not listed as a specific requirement but that relate directly to other areas in the 2017 Standards that, if not addressed, put the land trust or accreditation program at such high risk that clarification, additional documentation, and/or corrective action may be needed.

4. Review the List of Required Documents

The accreditation application includes pre-application materials, targeted verification documents, application questions, application documents, and documentation from land and easement projects. The Manual includes a list of the application documents; please use the final accreditation application when preparing your land trust's online application.

Click here for a reference copy of the first-time application.

Because the accreditation application is used to verify your land trust meets the accreditation requirements, it is essential your land trust has all of the applicable documents. Some documents only need to be provided if the situation applies to your land trust. These are generally noted with a statement: "If your land trust..."

For example, in the Transactions group of documents, "Documentation of transaction approval delegation" is only required if the full board does not approve each land and conservation easement transaction.

5. Review the Definitions and Lists of Examples

The requirements and application documents include some definitions and lists of examples.

- Definitions are given for terms noted with the symbol [?]. Definitions help your land trust understand how to meet the requirements.

For example, in the "Governance: Conflicts of Interest and Other Policies" section, there is a requirement that a conflict of interest policy applies to all insiders[?]. The question mark signals that a definition is given for the term insiders. To meet the requirement, a land trust's conflict of interest policy needs to apply to all insiders listed in the definition.

- Examples are provided to help your land trust understand the requirement or the types of documents expected in the application.

For example, in the "Finance: Financial Records and Financial Health" section, there is a requirement: "Form 990 substantially complete and accurate." The parenthetical "such as" examples highlight what the application reviewers look for in a Form 990.

Evaluating Land Trusts against the Requirements

Expectations Differ for First-Time and Renewal

- If you are a first-time applicant, your land trust needs to show compliance with the requirements in its current work, except when a longer period is noted.
- If your land trust is already accredited, your land trust needs to show compliance with the requirements over your entire accredited term when you apply for renewal.

For example, in the "Transactions: Baseline Documentation Reports" section, a first-time applicant is required to have a complete baseline documentation report signed at or before closing for at least its most recent conservation easement. An accredited land trust will need to show in its application that it had a complete baseline documentation report signed at or before closing for every conservation easement it accepted over its accredited term.

Phasing in Requirements

In order to ensure land trusts have time to implement any new requirements, the Commission may decide to phase in a requirement. The 2017 Standards included several new indicator elements for which the Commission developed corresponding requirements; these are noted throughout with a "Starting in..." notation. Accredited land trusts were expected to begin meeting these requirements in 2019, or as noted.

For example, in the "Transactions: Project Due Diligence" section there is a requirement for visually inspecting properties before closing. Each land trust will need to have documentation of this activity for projects starting in 2019. A land trust does not have to go back and document its visual inspections retroactively for projects before that time.

Facts and Circumstances Matter

Each land trust is different, and the application reviewers evaluate the documents with your land trust's unique facts and circumstances in mind.

For example, in the "Transactions: Project Review and Approval" section, the information provided to the board before it makes a decision to accept a conservation property for an all-volunteer land trust that meets monthly and visits every potential property before acquiring it would likely look very different from the materials provided to a board that meets quarterly and relies on staff to vet conservation acquisitions.

Help Reviewers Understand Your Story

Isolated and Rare Things Happen

Your land trust may have isolated or rare circumstances when it is not able to implement the indicator elements and show compliance with the requirements; this does not necessarily preclude it from being accredited or renewed. The Commission will review the facts and circumstances and may make allowances if:

- There is documentation that your land trust is typically compliant;
- The situation was clearly an isolated or rare event;
- The circumstances preventing your land trust from complying were clearly explained;
- Your land trust took alternative steps to meet the intent of the practice and/or mitigate risks associated with the non-compliance; and
- The non-compliance does not put your land trust or the accreditation program at risk.

For example, in the "Transactions: Baseline Documentation Reports" section, baseline documentation reports need to be signed at or before closing. However, a land trust could explain the circumstances for its one baseline that was not signed until two weeks after closing. The baseline was mailed to the landowner before closing, but the landowner left the country before signing it. The landowner apologized for the oversight and committed to signing it as soon as he returned. The land trust's 10 other baselines completed that year were completed and signed before closing. The application reviewers could find this non-compliance was isolated and rare and determine that no additional clarification, additional documentation and/or corrective action is needed.

Explanations Help

You can save your land trust time and help the application reviewers by explaining upfront areas of where your land trust did not meet the requirements. You should include relevant facts, circumstances, and explanations. The online application has a place for you to upload this information. You can reach out to the Commission's help desk if you have questions about what information would be important to include.

For More Information

The Land Trust Alliance has background information on The Learning Center for each of the indicator elements. This includes definitions, examples, and links to additional information that can help your land trust be successful in the accreditation process. There are also five online courses on accreditation on The Learning Center: Introduction to Accreditation and the Requirements Manual, along with courses on Governance, Finance, Transactions, and Stewardship.

- 11B2. Prepare the report prior to closing and have it signed by the landowner and land trust at or prior to closing; (a) In the event that seasonal conditions prevent the completion of a full baseline documentation report by closing, the landowner and land trust sign a schedule for finalizing the full report and an acknowledgement of interim data [that for donations and bargain sales meets Treasury Regulations §1.170A-14(g)(5)(i)] at closing
